

Information on the reimbursement of expenses related to the placement of the article in the journal and its distribution

The journal «TECHNOLOGIES & QUALITY» publishes quality articles with open access, allowing the scientific community and the public free access to published material.

Covering the costs of providing quality services and free access to readers and authors, the articles accepted after peer review require repayment of the costs associated with placing the article in the journal and distributing it.

When submitting or rejecting articles, no money is charged. The expenses are paid by the author only when the article is accepted, after plagiarism checking and reviewing.

The expenses related to the placement of the article in the journal and its distribution are aimed at:

- Assigning identifiers (DOI, UDC) to the article.
- Translation services.
- Dissemination of articles in the public domain on the World Wide Web Internet.
- Website maintenance work and linking to indexing databases.
- Provision of an author's copy of the journal.
- Distribution of copies of the journal.

Payment of the costs related to the placement of the article in the journal and its distribution, is made after the positive opinion of the reviewers, the journal editorial board's decision to publish the paper, and it forms RUR 5000.

The costs associated with placing an article in the journal and distributing it, may be paid in the following ways:

1) money is paid by higher education institutions, research and other organisations. In many higher education institutions and organisations there is a practice of paying for research articles publication, including from grant funds. In this case the author shall agree the possibility of payment with its organisation and contact the editorial office of the journal at tik@ksu.edu.ru to receive a package of documents essential for payment. What is provided includes a publishing services contract, an acceptance certificate for work performed and an invoice.

2) money is paid directly by the authors of the articles. After the article has been reviewed by the Editorial board, approved by the reviewers and included in a particular issue of «TECHNOLOGIES & QUALITY», the author will be sent a retainer agreement and, once completed, a receipt for payment will be emailed to the author (one can pay at the bank office or online, including using a barcode).

Agreeing to the publication of an article and sending it to the editors means that the author is aware of the costs involved in placing the article in the journal and distributing it.